Panaji: Waves'2018 , a three day extravaganza will be held from 26 -28 Oct at BITS Pilani Goa campus. WAVES 2018 spells excitement, thrill, competition, concerts, dancing, great food and so much more.

"To make these 3 days successful, we put our blood, sweat and tears into organising and making our fest what it is. Now, Waves also spells something special for the less fortunate children of our country," Meghavi Singhaniya, Waves'18 media head said.

Acknowledging the importance of education, Waves 2018 will also be about giving back to society, helping those in need and shaping the future of our country.

In association with Ratna Nidhi Charitable Trust and assistance from Nirmaan organization, for the second year in a row, we will launch a nationwide book collection drive for donation and provision to institutions across the nation.

"This collection drive, started on the August 13, will take place over a month's time. It will take place in schools located in all the major cities, namely - Mumbai, Bangalore, Pune, Hyderabad and Delhi, and even in our very own state-Goa," Singhaniya said.

The books collected from these schools will then be donated to the Ratna Nidhi Charitable Trust. With over 25+ years of experience, this NGO will help in providing these books to around 10,000 educational institutions around the nation which are in need of quality resources and reading material.

Through this initiative, we hope to help in providing easy access to these resources and assist in cultivating a learning attitude in those young minds.

After all, Nelson Mandela did say "Education is the most powerful weapon you can use to change the world". To participate or know more about this initiative, contact Dhananjay (9158077868).
